Don't Let La Niña Catch You Off Guard

Claudia
McClain

This year's expected winter weather is all over the news. Citizens are advised to prepare for a very cold, wet and snowy season (and all the inconveniences that may come along with it.) Now is the time to prepare, to keep those little hassles from turning into bigger troubles.

Please visit TakeWinterByStorm.org for tips and checklists that will help you get ready.

Nick
Pembroke

Besides the obvious (plenty of water, food for family members and pets, first aid kits, and blankets) here are some tips of how our team members are getting ready:

Claudia: "I'm going to invest in a car cell-phone charger for my iPhone. That way, I can stay connected so that we can continue to help our clients with claims, even during longer power outages."

Nick: "I'm in charge of winterizing our cars, including checking the oil, fluids and lights, replacing wipers, putting on the winter tires and getting chains, cleaning the battery, and putting an emergency pack with water, food and blankets in each car."

Laura
Paradis

Laura: "I'll fill up my pantry with canned food, get a stack of good books and buy a transistor radio to stay updated."

Nathalie
Stamey

Nathalie: "I hate driving in the snow, so I'll be prepared to not leave the house for extended stretches of time. Not easy, with an active toddler! I've started stocking up on non-perishables and pet food, and aim to get my Christmas shopping done early this year."

Mary: "The back-to-school emergency packs and contact lists always get me in the mindset to go through our own First Aid Kits and medications at home, and stock up where needed. I also have my annual ritual to change our smoke-detector batteries."

Have You Heard About Our 'Big Move'?

Recent bank closures have opened an exciting 'window of opportunity' for us: We are preparing to move into the abandoned bank space right next door to our current office.

Our new and larger floor plan will allow us to provide a community room for classes and events to better serve our clients.

Are Your Winter Toys Ready For The Snow?

It seems like this winter will be promising for those who enjoy powder, speed, and fun! If you plan on taking your ATV or snowmobile out for a ride this winter, now is the time for maintenance:

- Inspect your snowmobile thoroughly and check for worn or loose parts. Repair or replace as necessary.
- Clean the carburetor, refill fluids, and replace sparkplugs.
- Grease your snowmobile as described in your owner's manual.
- Be sure to carry adequate insurance for your snowmobile. Neither your auto nor your homeowners/renters insurance will provide coverage if you are held liable in a snowmobile accident.
